VOLUME III

"Beside Still Waters"

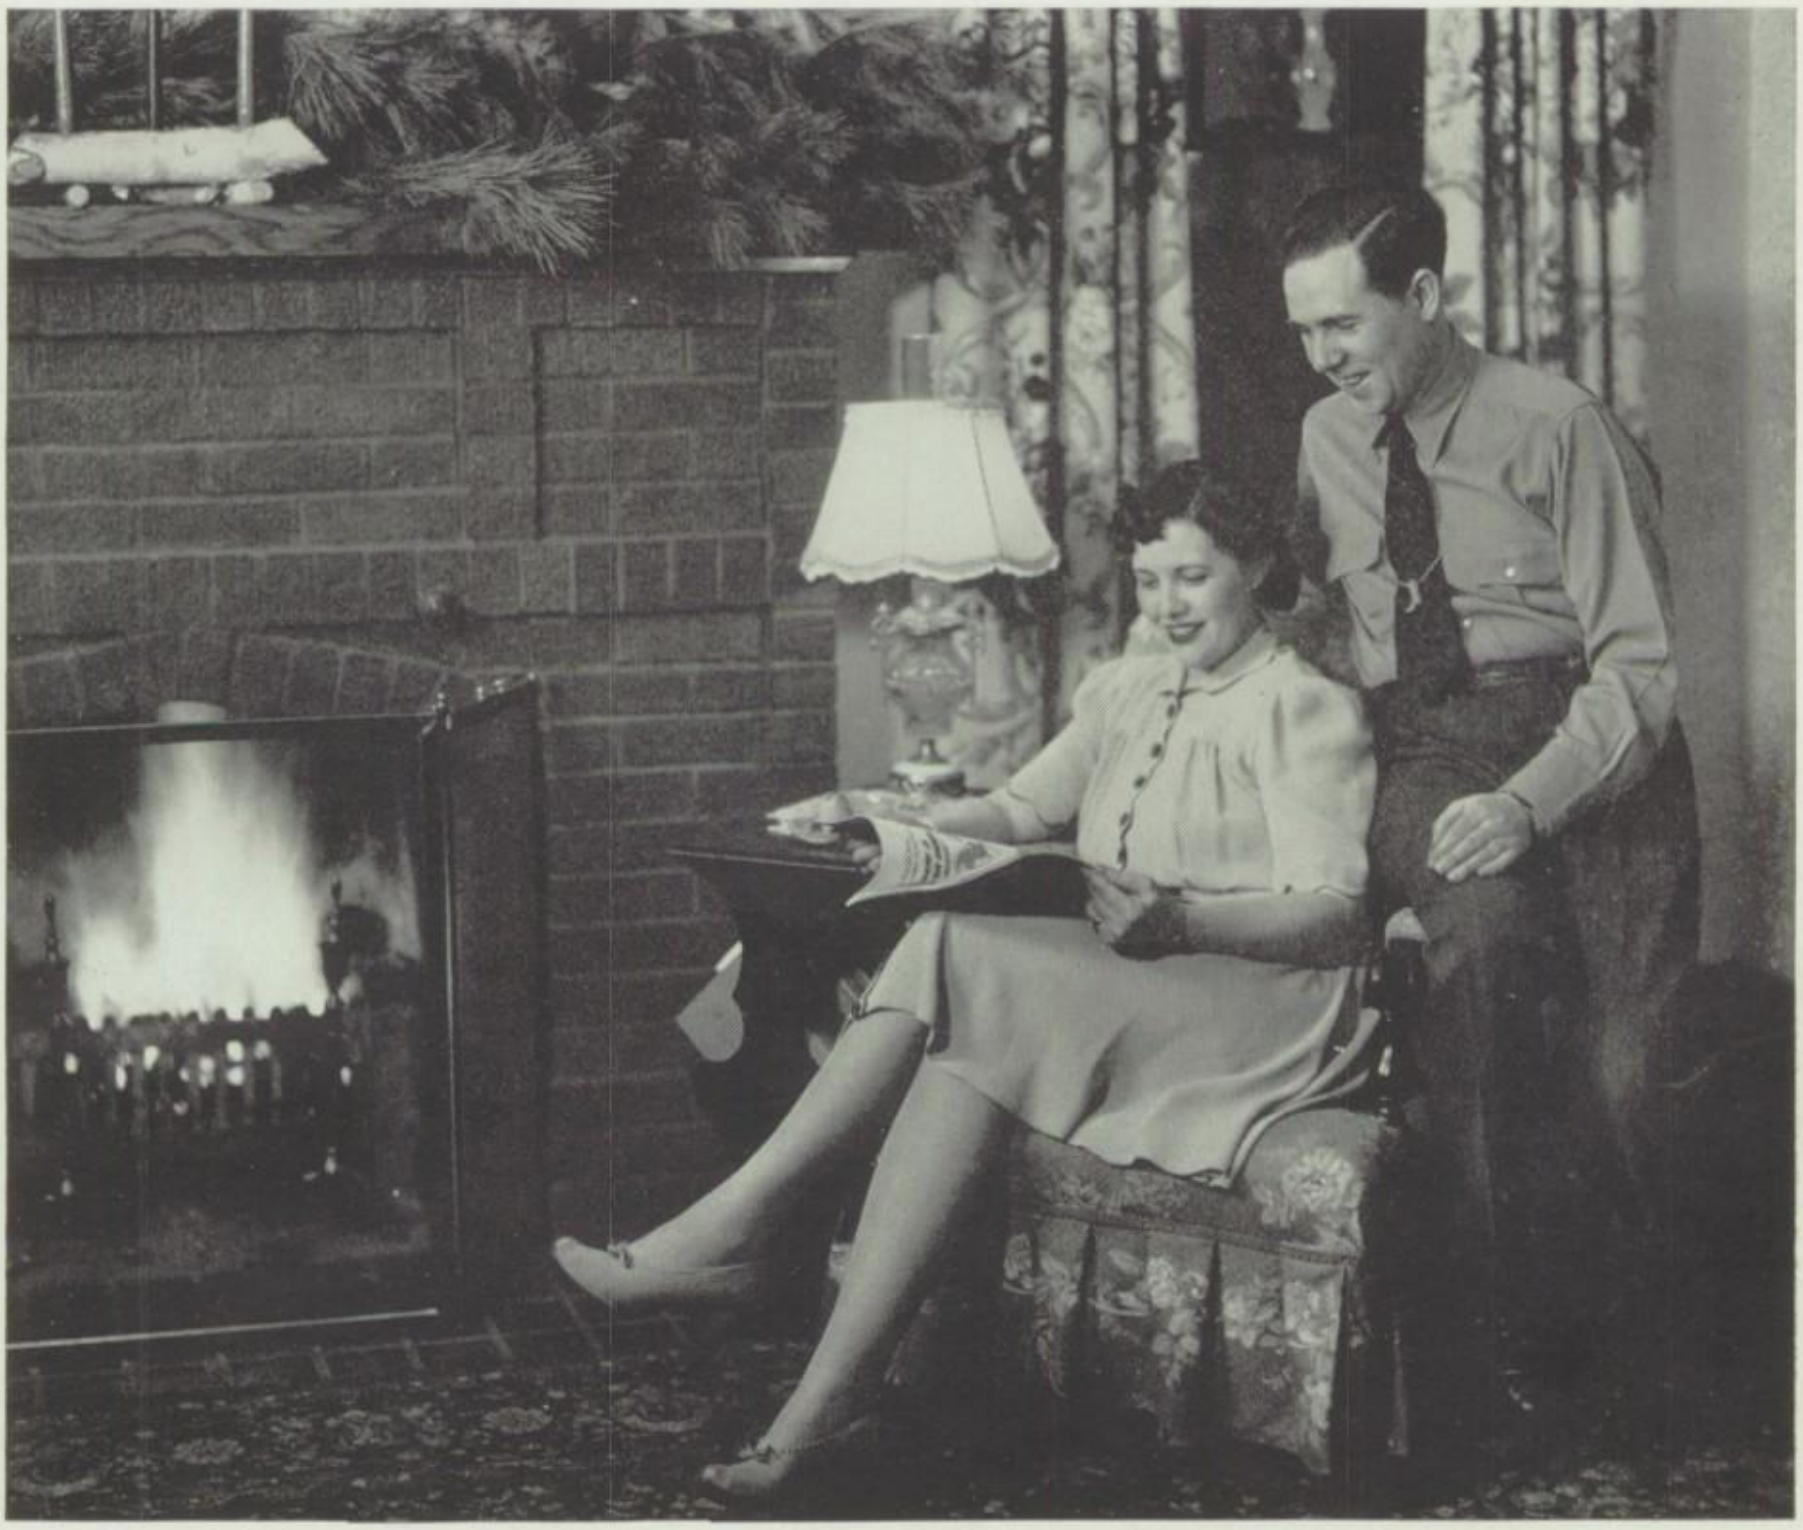
knows no limitations to its opportunities and resources. It has the determination and eagerness that, strengthened by perception and understanding, will one day form the basis for world-wide understanding.

Because we believe that our school activities, our work, and our friendships here at Murray play an important part in the development of Youth Today, we have tried to make the 1942 annual as complete a record as possible of the life that is so familiar to Murray.

"We make this season merry still"

Youth dreams today
Of unknown worlds that lie ahead
And calls upon tomorrow
To fulfill these dreams



DEDICATION

Youth Today looks to parents as never before for guidance. Their eagerness to understand and help us in our problems, their pride in our achievements however small, and their encouragement of our worthwhile ambitions and desires are incentives toward higher goals.

In loving appreciation of sacrifices made in our behalf, we, the Youth of Today, dedicate the Pilot of 1942 to our parents.

"Her memory makes our common landscape seem
Fairer than any of which painters dream,
Lights the brown hills and sings in every stream."

THE LIFE

"Quit heckling," begs Jim of the underclassmen as he opens the door for Jean. Many Murray students, like Jim and Jean, arrive around 8:15 to chat in the halls or do last minute studying in the library.

There are a few minutes before the 8:30 bell, so Jim spends them constructively. Students throng the halls from 8:15 to 8:30 in a concentrated effort to leave nothing untold or undone.

"See, it's this way," points out Jim. With his assistance, Jean finishes her assignment for the next day during the time set aside in each class for study.

He asks. She consents. So while Jim stops at the box office to get tickets for the basketball game, Jean gossips with the ticket seller.

WE LOVE

Time out for lunch—and also time to talk of the morning's events. Jim finds Jean an interested listener when he tells of his various escapades.

"Well, fancy meeting you here—" (as if he didn't know) The library has reference material for all kinds of subjects, and since two heads are better than one, the two seniors meet again.

A fellow's got to have some relaxation after such a strenuous day. The three o'clock buzzer sounds, and students pile out of doors en masse anxious to get home or, as in the case of Jim and Jean, to get down to the junior class Holiday Hop.

"Hail, hail, the gang's all here." The sunlight over, Jim and Jean stop for cokes with friends—a pleasant end to their school day.

As one of their most worthy projects this year, the Student Council, with Bob Hagen acting as chairman, conducted a Thanksgiving collection for the needy.

The project met with a gratifying response, and the assembled baskets were turned over to the Salvation Army for distribution. The collection containing everything from soup to nuts is being looked over here by Elaine Mielke, Bob Hagen, Joyce Wellsley, and Sandy Boyd.

"Have I lost that much?" asks the bewildered student as she is weighed in at the nurse's office at the beginning of the school year.

Mrs. George Bergup's room is equipped for all emergencies, although here she is merely recording the weight of Dawn Goble.

Here is the man who makes it hot for Murray students, and they like it. Mr. Earl Foster, better known to Murrayites as "Tarzan", has long lost track of the tons of coal he has shoveled into the school's big furnaces.

Junior Red Cross activities played an important part in the year's early activities. Many girls learned the art of applying all types of bandages in their First Aid class, and others kept the needles clicking as they knitted for the Red Cross. Miss Wilhelmena Randall supervised the group.

FACULTY

The More We Get Together

English and language instructors, eager to hear of Miss Ruth Laramy's experiences at the National Convention of English Teachers, gather to listen for a few minutes after school. As St. Paul's only delegate, Miss Laramy attended the convention held in Atlanta, Georgia, and brought back interesting reports from which, however, was missing that Southern accent generally acquired by Northern travelers in the South.

Listening in on the review of convention affairs are: first row, right, Miss Mabel Surratt, Miss Elsea Peterson, and Mrs. Cora Halvorson. Second row, right, Miss Wilhelmena Randall, Mr. Bernard Winkelman, and Miss Florence Vest. Miss Ruth Laramy is addressing the group.

Miss Arlys Denzel, director of music, takes time out of a busy day to practice with the Girls' Trio while Valborg Gornitzka accompanies them. The three girls have sung every Friday morning all year over WLB on the University Farm program. This means they had to be early risers as the program went on the air at 7:15 A.M.

Standing are Betty Harmon, Lois Michaelson, and Joyce Tanquary.

It's All "Shop Talk"

In the interests of science — Here Mrs. Pearl Bunker, biology instructor, takes apart a model of the human eye to examine and discuss what makes it tick. Mr. Richard Kayser who teaches chemistry and physics and Mrs. Lucille Roach, general science instructor, talk things over with Mrs. Bunker.

Roy, the pet turtle of the biology room, refused to pose for the cameraman.

How times have changed! Yes, and maps too. These maps, up-to-date only a short while ago, are past history now. Teachers of social studies and history find it quite a problem to keep up with the present in map study work.

With such a constantly changing and rapidly moving world before them, history and social science teachers meet to speculate on coming world events. It takes alert minds on the part of both the teachers and the student body to "get in the game" as far as current happenings are concerned.

Our Work-A-Day World

To be able to balance a budget is a real accomplishment, as almost everyone will agree. With Miss Jennie Wiesenthal's bookkeeping II class, it is a matter of pride to master their problem sheets without having their books show either a deficiency or too large a balance on hand.

In all probability, these students will be the future income tax experts.

Out to the count of ten—Instructed in artificial respiration by Mr. Corlis Huntley, Bob Thompson is making a vain attempt to bring his victim, Sandy Boyd, to consciousness. To all appearances Sandy is on his last leg, but Bob remembers the First Aid advice to apply artificial respiration until the person is out of danger or some authority pronounces him dead.

Also all in a day's practice is the art of bandaging, which Miss Florence Miller explains to Eileen Strobeck. Shirley Cunningham is bandaged by Eileen as if an actual emergency were present.

First Aid classes are a part of the daily routine for all students from the seventh through the tenth grades.

Making sure that the dress pattern fits is the first step in sewing, as any good home economics student knows. Here Alice Milton fits a pattern on Ann Curley before the cutting begins. Dora Jean Pfutzenreuter is somewhat farther in the making of her dress. While she sews a fine seam on the electric sewing machine, Miss Mary MacKnight offers a few helpful suggestions.

In charge of the girls' guidance work for Murray and also adviser of Girls' League, is Mrs. Corinne Robinson. Here she and Miss Frances Coakley, a welfare worker, are discussing the different phases of their work.

To put a newspaper together requires a great deal of effort on the part of the staff and its adviser. Consequently, Miss Margaret Glenn, journalism instructor, and Mary Souther, editor of the Murcurie, spend many hours going over plans for each edition.

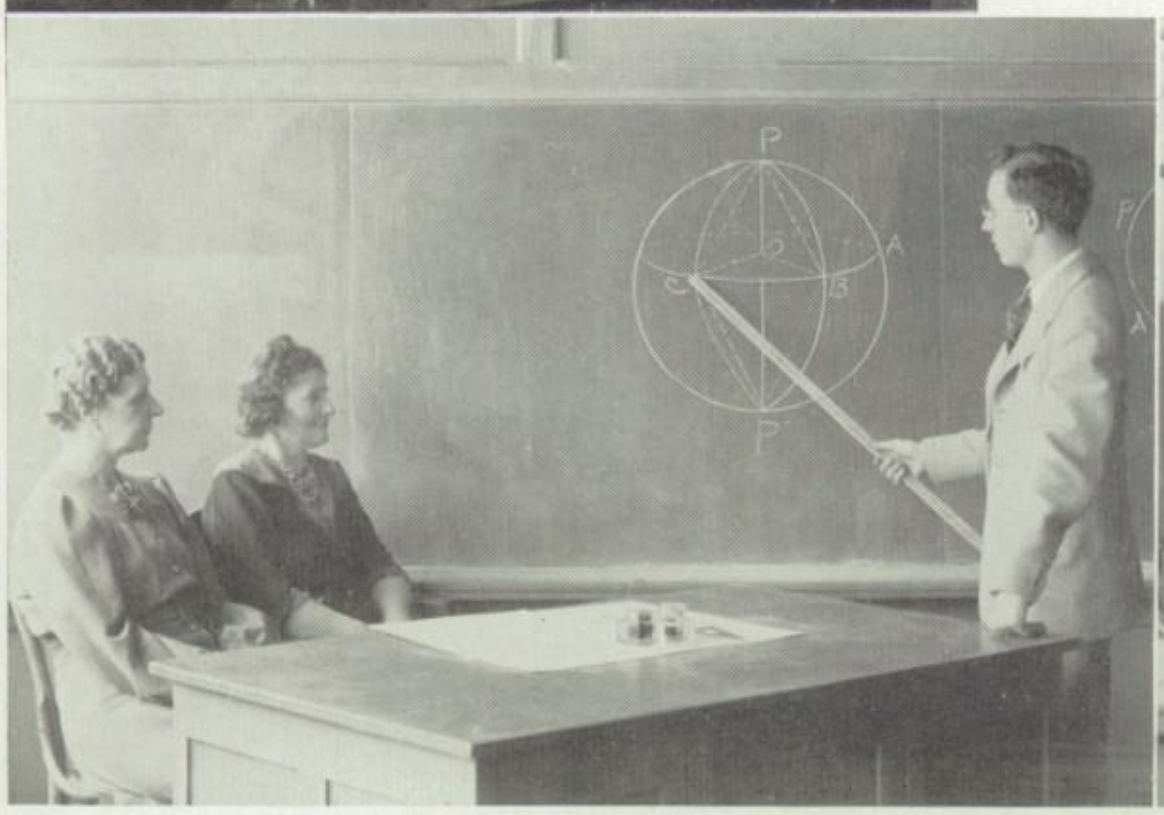
Learning to transcribe those zig-zaggy lines into English is simple, Miss Valborg Helseth's period VI stenography I class will tell you. For four months they read and learn to interpret shorthand characters by going over the figures in their books with a stylus. They spend the remainder of the term learning to apply these figures. June will find these students well versed in the ways of stenography.

Preparing interesting new books for the library shelves and keeping old ones in good repair are only two of the many tasks done by Miss Marion Gratz and Mrs. Lucile Brown. They are seen at the most important of all jobs, that of cataloguing new books.

"The workmanship is good," say Mr. Hubert Kuefler and Mr. George Bergup of the table they are examining. Mr. Bergup has charge of the woodcraft shop while Mr. Kuefler trains pupils in the art of machine work.

As far as most of us are concerned, the figure which Dean Emrick points out is only a maze of lines. Miss Olive Batschelet and Miss Louise Smith teach geometry and math classes fundamental figure facts so that the maze is clear.

There's never a dull moment in the office. Miss Margaret Neville finds typing, making out requisitions, and disciplining bench-warmers only a small part of her job. Helen Reichow, one of the office force, calls the home of absentees—just to make sure.



Pete - been fun
being in school with you! Best of luck.
Mary.

Seniors Take The Spotlight

What's it like to be a senior? How many times in the last three years have present upper-classmen asked themselves that question.

The answer came with sudden realization early in the 1941-42 term when Mr. George Bergup, senior adviser, had President John Bultrud call the class's first meeting. Much praise is due Mr. Bergup for his patient and successful guidance of the class during the past two years.

Senior activities of the fall season began with a dance in October which found many a senior "polishing" old dance steps and learning new.

Throughout the fall and spring, class meetings were held at which time important business was discussed. It was at such a meeting that caps and gowns were favored over formals, and the combination, white caps and gowns for girls and blue for boys, was chosen.

Cold weather and snow suggested a winter outing. This resulted in a senior sleigh ride at Eaton's Ranch in December.

With the turn of the year the class became "dance minded" and sponsored a sunlite in February. This was followed by a dance given in collaboration with the junior class.

Hard but exciting work on the senior class play filled many hours in the early part of the spring. This undertaking marked the culmination of activities sponsored by the senior class.

With the last few weeks of the term drawing near, the social events of the year were brought to a close by the Junior-Senior prom. This social affair sponsored by the juniors marked the end to a pleasant year for the graduates.

The seniors are indeed grateful to Miss Marion Gratz, Miss Mabel Surratt, Miss Valborg Helseth, Mrs. Ruth Eddy, and Mr. Bernard Winkelman, senior enrollment advisers, for four pleasant years of high school.

To the Graduates of 1942:

It is my privilege and pleasure to extend to you the congratulations of the Murray faculty as well as my personal wishes of good will to each of you.

There have been many moments of pleasure and pride experienced by you during your years at Murray. In the light of present realities we hardly dare to take the time to look back upon these moments now.

At no stage in the world's history has it been more important for us to face the tasks of each day with fortitude and courage. I am proud to state that the graduates of this class, like those in other schools throughout our land, are ready to meet the challenge presented by a world at war.

Youth Today, the theme of this book, is a fitting one for the year 1942. For the task of holding to the ideals of a free people lies in the hands of our youth. May your endeavors be worthy and profitable, and may happiness be yours despite the shadows that fall.

Seniors Leave Their Mark

In High Honor Rating

Somewhere there is a happy combination of work and pleasure, and the nearest approach to it is to be found in the 1942 senior honor roll. The majority of students whose names are on the list this year have been prominent in many school activities. They have left a permanent record of achievements on Murray's file of time to be remembered and realized more and more as the years go by. They are the molders of tradition.

Special honors go to Wayne Larimore who heads the list of forty-one seniors and to Albert Holmboe who is second in scholastic ratings.

Honorable mention is given to Shirley Trovatten, Leonard Melander, and Barbara Levine whose averages are above ninety-two.

Hail--The Coming Seniors

Early in September the juniors—a rather green bunch, still wet behind the ears, elected officers and a board, formed a constitution and set out definitely to establish a record of activities not soon to be forgotten at Murray.

Its first venture, the Junior Stag Stomp, given in the gym September twenty-fifth proved to be one of the most successful sunlights of the year. It was here that many stags stopped stomping long enough to get a first glimpse of the conga line, as done by knowing Murrayites.

Next on the bill was a movie-party held October tenth and eleventh at the Mid-town. Students will remember how Murray literally "took over" the theater for those evenings. It is feared that not much is remembered concerning the movie.

By popular request, juniors planned to sponsor a series of rollerskating parties, the first of which was held November twenty-ninth at the Oxford Rink. Crowning event of a half year's work was the colorful Christmas party held in the cafeteria where Santa Claus in person gave gifts to all those present.

With the ringing in of a new year, came plans for a dance to be given with the seniors, more rollerskating parties, a second movie party and, of course, the Junior-Senior prom.

May twenty-second was the date chosen, and soon each committee was busy on its own particular phase of the work. Those in charge of orchestra, place, decorations, program, each was taxed to the extent of his originality to make the affair especially memorable in the annals of Murray's history.

The juniors are proud of the program they have presented during the year and realize that it has been made possible only through the understanding guidance given by Miss Virginia Fertig, adviser, the untiring efforts of the officers, and the constant cooperation of all its members.

Keep 'em Flying--

Under the guiding hand of Mrs. Ruth Eddy, adviser, Student Council Executive Board members and home room representatives supervised many of the school's activities this year. Officers were Shirley Trovatten, president; Frances Snyder, vice president; Betty Ann Schwartz, secretary; and Sandy Boyd, treasurer. Dick Briggs was manager of the book store.

Committees were appointed in the fall to have charge of the cafeteria, assemblies, the book store, the activities calendar, and the point system. During the year the Council operated the second hand book store, had charge of the Community Chest and Red Cross drives, sold Christmas seals, and sponsored a patriotic assembly and a "Stamp Stomp."

Senior Day, the day the Pilot is issued, means a great deal to all the students who worked on the yearbook staff. It means the end of a year of hard work, but it also means the end of much fun in planning, picture-taking, proofing, and trips downtown to the printer and engraver.

In between their hours of labor on the book, the students managed to give the annual Pilot assembly which highlighted the subscription campaign in October. "Youth of Yesterday" was the theme, and the skit given proved very hilarious as different people appeared in tableaus resembling pictures that one could find in a yearbook of the year 1900. Robert Smith, business manager, was in charge of the program.

Girls' League Makes History

Big girls, little girls, freshmen, and seniors! Once a month they all may be seen crowding into the auditorium for the regular meeting of Girls' League. These gatherings give the girls a chance to hear their pet problems discussed. Favorite topics are charm, popularity, styles, and beauty. There are no qualifications for membership in this organization as every senior high school girl at Murray belongs.

At the head of Girls' League this year was Gwen Zettel, president. Cooperating with her were Phyllis Hensel, vice president; Peggy Handford, secretary; and Irene Olson, treasurer. Mrs. Corinne Robinson was the faculty adviser.

All the new ninth graders were welcomed at the Little Sister party in September which made a grand opening to start off the season.

In November Miss Adele Ellinghouse, a representative from the Merle Norman cosmetic studios, gave a demonstration on the use of cosmetics. Make-up was given away as door prizes, and Dorothy Eddleston was one of the lucky girls to receive some.

Mrs. Marion Faegre, assistant professor of parent education at the University of Minnesota, spoke to the group in January on the subject, "Understanding Ourselves." The February birthday meeting which marked the beginning of the fourth year of Girls' League featured movies and late winter and spring styles modeled by Murray girls.

The annual Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet held each spring took place May 14 in the school cafeteria. The juniors have built up the tradition of giving this dinner to the graduates as a final climax to their Girls' League career.

Time may drone on, but part of the history of Murray High School will remain embalmed in the photographs of those eminent shutterbugs, the Camera Club of 1942.

Memories as well as photographs will be retained by Murrayites who witnessed or participated in the Shutter Day sponsored by the Camera Club and the Pilot to make Murray more camera conscious. Prizes totaling five dollars were given for the three best pictures.

Antics of the Camera Club members and other enthusiasts were witnessed by the student body and chalked up as part of the day's fun. Turned loose upon the innocent, weak, and weaponless students of Murray was Jack Ross and his deadly flash camera. In some classes nearly every other person carried a camera. Favorite setting for rabid candid camera fiends was the chemistry lab; there midst fumes, explosions, and breaking test tubes, Bob Rowland snapped the shot of Harry Knoblauch that won the Grand Prize.

The favorite rendezvous for the members of the Camera Club was the darkroom. At their disposal was complete developing and printing equipment purchased by the club.

The Camera Club is unique in that it is not essentially a service organization; its purpose is to assist and instruct the individual camera fan.

Much of the success of the Camera Club the past year has been due to the efforts of Mr. Richard Kayser, adviser, and the present officers, Philip Christensen, president; Jack Ross, vice president; Marilyn Giddings, secretary; Elaine Broders, treasurer. Bob Rowland and Bob Beseth were president and secretary respectively for the first semester.

First come page plans, next individual assignments, then deadlines, copyreading, name checking, and finally, the Murcurie is ready for the press. But making-up, proof-reading, and page-proofing must follow this before the school paper is finally in the hands of the reader.

In addition to editing a newspaper, the staff members took part in various other activities during the year. In January, the Murray journalists entertained the St. Paul High School Press Club. The speaker was Miss Catherine Quealy, reporter and feature writer for the Minneapolis Star-Journal. Special publicity for the War Emergency Council and for the P.-T. A. Spring Frolic was also handled by the paper.

Kept busy most of every month were Mary Souther, editor, and Katherine Stickney, assistant editor of the 1941-1942 staff. Miss Margaret Glenn advised the editorial group, while the business side was under the supervision of Miss Jennie Wiesenthal.

Keeping track of what happens to all alumni is the most important service of the Stephen Vincent Benet Chapter of Quill and Scroll. When war was declared, a special arrangement was made to keep in touch with former Murray students who went into the United States armed service. To give the boys news from home, the club members took turns at writing letters to each one. These were sent along with the monthly copy of the Murcurie.

Candle-lighting Initiation

Above are Katherine Stickney, Harriett McCue, and Russell Clampett lighting the candles of Truth, Leadership, and Loyalty.

During the year it wasn't uncommon to see Quill and Scrollers in the halls playing the role of high-powered salesmen. They were usually eyeing the crowds trying to find some prospective customer to purchase a pack of personal postcards or a book of personalized labels. Selling these items was the chief money-making scheme for the organization, and the profits enabled members to have a picture in the Pilot.

Two informal initiations were held during the year. The first was an afternoon tea at the home of the president, Harriett McCue. The second was a party given by the honorary members at the St. Paul Teachers' Federation rooms.

Miss Margaret Glenn is adviser of the group. Katherine Stickney and Russell Clampitt are secretary-treasurer and vice president respectively. Honorary faculty members include Miss Elsea Peterson, Miss Marion Gratz, and Miss Jennie Wiesenthal.

BOOKS ARE KEYS

Having the distinction of being the oldest organization in Murray, the Library Club has held forth from its book-lined shelves for sixteen years. All this time Miss Marion Gratz has been the guiding hand of her club, her help making it the important service organization that it is.

Three new projects were undertaken in the past year. A rental collection was added to the library and has proved to be popular with students and teachers alike. To have members equally well informed of the activities of the club was the purpose of the "L. C. Flash Sheet", which was begun in February. As its contribution to defense, the Library Club started the saving of waste paper, the collection being cared for by L. C. Auxiliary boys.

Delightful meetings were a part of the Library Club in 1941-42. In October Mrs. Agnes Kirkwood entertained with sketches of great personalities as she saw them through the eyes of a newspaperwoman. November brought the annual Book Week tea as well as a very entertaining assembly planned by L. C. members. Information on jobs in aviation was given by Mr. Herbert Agar of the Northwest Airlines in a talk at the February gathering. In April the club held open house for the monthly P.-T. A. meeting and exhibited books old and new.

Social events of the year included the initiation and party held in January. The Library Club Banquet, at which time pins were presented to those members who had earned them, took place in April. The year's work was carried out in the best Library Club tradition by club members and officers who were Leone King, president; Janet Overbee and Granville Guttersen, vice presidents; Jean Waite, secretary; Kenneth Strauch, treasurer; Katherine Stickney, program chairman.

Excellent training is given future L. C. members in the Library Club Auxiliary. This year Janet Overbee and Granville Guttersen, instructors, planned permanent outlines of each lesson to be used for study purposes. A rigid final exam at the end of the year will be one of the factors determining which auxiliary members are ready to join the club.

What Have We Here?

Keeping busy is no task for the Dramatic Department of Murray. Under the direction of Miss Florence Vest the group is always working on some form of entertainment.

Early last fall during the football season, pepfests were the chief work of the dramatists. Later a special Vaudeville was staged to earn some extra money for the department. The Library Club handled all the publicity, and the event was a big hit. A magician, three short skits, dances, and piano solos made up the program.

"Back to the Hills of Bethlehem" was the play given by the expression students at the annual Christmas program in the auditorium.

Much time was spent preparing a show for the P.-T.A. Frolic; however, the main event of the second semester was the senior class play, "June Mad."

Lots of luck to you at the Dottie Eddleston

Typical of any production ever staged in the auditorium is this pre-curtain scene of people being made up. The audience does not realize the time and effort spent by the cast just before the footlights go on. It takes skill to apply properly the rouge, lipstick, and eye-shadow on the faces of the nervous actors. Seen here hard at work are Betty Olsen, Miss Florence Vest and Lorraine Hoag. Being made up are Irmelin Erdman, Dorothy Eddleston, and Janet Schwartz.

At Christmas the expression classes presented the tableau, "Back to the Hills of Bethlehem." Margery Evert and Richard Larson were narrators for the various scenes of the Nativity. To complete the narration, some of the expression class members formed a verse speaking chorus led by Nancy Caldwell. The choir assisted in the musical end with familiar seasonal songs. Vera Harjung, as the Virgin Mary, sang one of the solo numbers, "O Holy Night." This scene from the play depicts the journey to Bethlehem in search of the Christ Child.

This dramatic scene was taken from "Be Home at Midnight" or "The Clock Struck One." It was given by the expression II class at the Dramatic Club Vaudeville last fall. The mother, Helen Archer, and daughter, Roxanna Erlandson, look on as Jack Hedlund, who played the part of father, reprimands his guilty son, Bill Cook, for staying out too late. This play was only one of a group given at that time.

to a swell kid,
Jack Hedlund

G.A.A.

Bowling, swimming, basketball, and horseback-riding were the sports enjoyed by the athletic-minded girls of Murray this year. Interrupting this routine were the Homecoming and Spring Sports Dances, a caramel corn sale, and the annual spring banquet.

The adviser, Miss Florence Miller; Mae Anderson, president; Myrl Larimore, vice president; Joyce Tanquary, secretary-treasurer; and Margaret Pearson, recording secretary, all helped make a successful year.

M CLUB

As its principal endeavor of the past year, the M Club presented the rollicking "M Club Revue" full of merrymaking, magic, and melodrama the last of March. Staging the Homecoming and Spring Sports Dances in cooperation with the G.A.A. occupied the M. Club for the remainder of the year.

The success of these undertakings was due principally to the efforts of the officers, Bob Lee, president; Don Gilbert, vice president; Charles Zwiener, secretary; Roger Sandberg, treasurer; and to its adviser, Mr. Corlis Huntley.

Beethoven to Boogie—that's the range in repertoire of the Murray band. Since the introduction of a boogie-woogie number a few months ago, the music of Beethoven and his contemporaries has been relegated to second place in the taste of the members.

The past year has seen many changes in the band. Under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Wannamaker, it has been transformed from a marching to a concert organization. The last marching venture took the band down to the Langford Park community get-together on Halloween, up to Guttersen, along Como, and back to Murray.

A junior band of twelve members has been organized which meets Tuesdays and Thursdays during first period. Beginners will enter this group, and after passing a certain test, will be admitted to the regular band.

Practicing Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings from 7:30 to 8:30, the band contributed much to the musical success of Murray. On Tuesday and Thursday mornings the brass ensemble and the woodwind ensembles met to gain the experience of playing in small groups. At the Christmas assembly a brass ensemble consisting of Lyle Wharton and Edwin Stickney, trumpets; Charles Mereness, baritone; Raymond Petersen, trombone; and Allan Petersen, tuba; played traditional carols. The woodwind and brass ensembles were groomed to perform at the State Music Contests held at the University of Minnesota. Also the string instrument group consisting of fourteen violinists has practiced faithfully Mondays after school and played at many club gatherings.

The band as a whole played at football games, parades, and assemblies. Upholding the morale of the football team were Phyllis Hensel, Mary Louise Souther, Phyllis Keller, and Leone King, drum majorettes, who marched at many of the games.

The National Music Contest, which was held in St. Paul in 1941, this year was held according to districts. The Minnesota district met at Duluth May 14, 15, and 16.

Seated on the fountain are Paul Wahoski and Emily Johansen, the operetta leads.

Not one, not even two, but three periods a day the Murray choir meets under the direction of Miss Arlys Denzel to sing and sing and sing.

The choir is always practicing for some coming event. If it isn't Christmas or operetta time, the choristers have radio or public appearances to make either at their own school or some other place in the city.

At the Minnesota Education Convention last fall the choir made its first public appearance of the year. The Murray singers were selected especially for this occasion because of their outstanding ability shown the previous spring at the commencement exercises.

The annual Christmas concert was given December eighteenth in the auditorium jointly with the Dramatic Club. The singers made their entrance in an effective candle-light processional, singing a well-known carol. At intervals throughout the whole program other songs were sung by soloists, mixed groups, and the Boys' Quartet as well as numbers by the whole group.

Immediately after the holidays, the operetta took first place in the minds of all the musicians. "Riding Down the Sky", a peppy South American selection, was finally chosen and try-outs started. When all the parts were cast, serious rehearsals began, and finally on February 25, 26, and 27, the production was ready for the stage. One matinee for the students and two evening shows completed the performances, and all the fun was over.

Emily Johansen had the lead of Carmelita, a South American senorita, and Paul Wahoski played the most important boy's part, that of an American aviator. Five couples demonstrated the rhumba and tango dances which were characteristic of the Spanish setting. As the story took place during Fiesta time, there was much color and gayety to the whole plot.

On April 18 the M.E.A. again sponsored the choir in a public appearance. This time the group sang over WCCO as part of an education program.

Making radio broadcasts became quite a habit with the Girls' Trio. Their talents were discovered by the University station, WLB, when the girls sang at a meeting last fall. Betty Harmon, Joyce Tanquary, and Lois Michaelson made up the group, and they performed nearly every Friday morning throughout the year.

Officers of the choir were Paul Wahoski, president; Douglas Peterson, vice president; Lois Christensen, treasurer; and Marion Vesaas, business manager.

America's Hope-- The Youth of Today

Tomorrow's world is in the hands of the youth of today, who, reared to enjoy the freedom offered by this, our America, now are ready to face the future with its problems of war and reconstruction.

From every school in this land of ours men and boys are going forth to uphold the ideals of a free people. To the instructors and students of Murray High School who are now with the armed forces we extend our very sincere wishes.

We at home remember you, and to you, the Senior Class of 1942 dedicates this page.

MR. RICHARD M. KAYSER

Mr. Richard M. Kayser, science instructor at Murray since 1938, enlisted in the U. S. Army on April 3, 1942. Mr. Kayser graduated from St. Thomas College and took his graduate work at the University of Minnesota.

MR. CHARLES J. SIMMER

Mr. Charles J. Simmer is Murray's first instructor to enter service in the present conflict. Called to active duty on March 30, Mr. Simmer is now in the U. S. Navy.

Mr. Simmer graduated from St. Thomas College, St. Paul, where he majored in sociology.

"More fight, determination, and scoring power than any other previous Pilot eleven"—that describes the 1941 Murray football team in the words of the head coach, Hubert Kuefler.

The Pilots opened the season by engaging the Big Nine Champs of Red Wing on the latter's field. While considered the underdogs in this pre-conference game, the Pilots came through to tie Red Wing 6-6.

In the first city conference game Humboldt and Murray opened the season with a fine exhibition of high school football. The Pilots' line was outstanding thus forcing Humboldt to take to the air. Three perfectly executed plays by Humboldt spoiled the Pilots' chances for victory. Murray's lone score came late in the fourth period when Al Holmboe intercepted a Humboldt pass and ran eighty-five yards for Murray's only score.

The Pilots again met defeat at the hands of a better than average Wilson squad which capitalized on Murray's fumbles. Recovering from bad breaks, the Pilots marched on an unhalted drive to score six points.

A second 6-6 deadlock for the 1941 Pilots came when they played the Harding squad. Murray scored in the first half and had high hopes of victory when Harding intercepted a pass which placed them in a position to tie the game.

The heartbreaker of the season was the Mechanics-Murray game which the Pilots lost although they outplayed the Trainers. A recovery of a Murray fumble led to the first score, while Ernest Minelli, fleet halfback of the Trainers, made the second touchdown.

Homecoming found the Pilots clashing with Monroe. The breaks of the game were against the Pilots when a touchdown pass to Ken Poehler was called back. The Monroe eleven scored on a run-back of a punt. Although outplaying the Monitors, the Pilots failed to score.

Many followers of the gridiron felt that the Murray-Washington game was one of the Pilots' best showings of the season.

Keeping the Washington Presidents on an equal footing in the first half, the Pilots displayed determination and spark against hard charging opponents who led 7-6 when the first half ended.

In the second half, the Pilots continued to push ahead on long drives but failed to score as the Presidents' reserve strength began to count, and the final score was 20-6 in favor of the Washington team.

More power and reserve was the answer to the defeat delivered by the Johnson squad. Going into the game as the underdogs, the Murray eleven put up a stiff fight and were first to score when Ken Poehler intercepted a pass and, with fine interference, scampered to a 6-0 lead. Johnson's powerhouse clicked in the second half and smothered Murray 31-6.

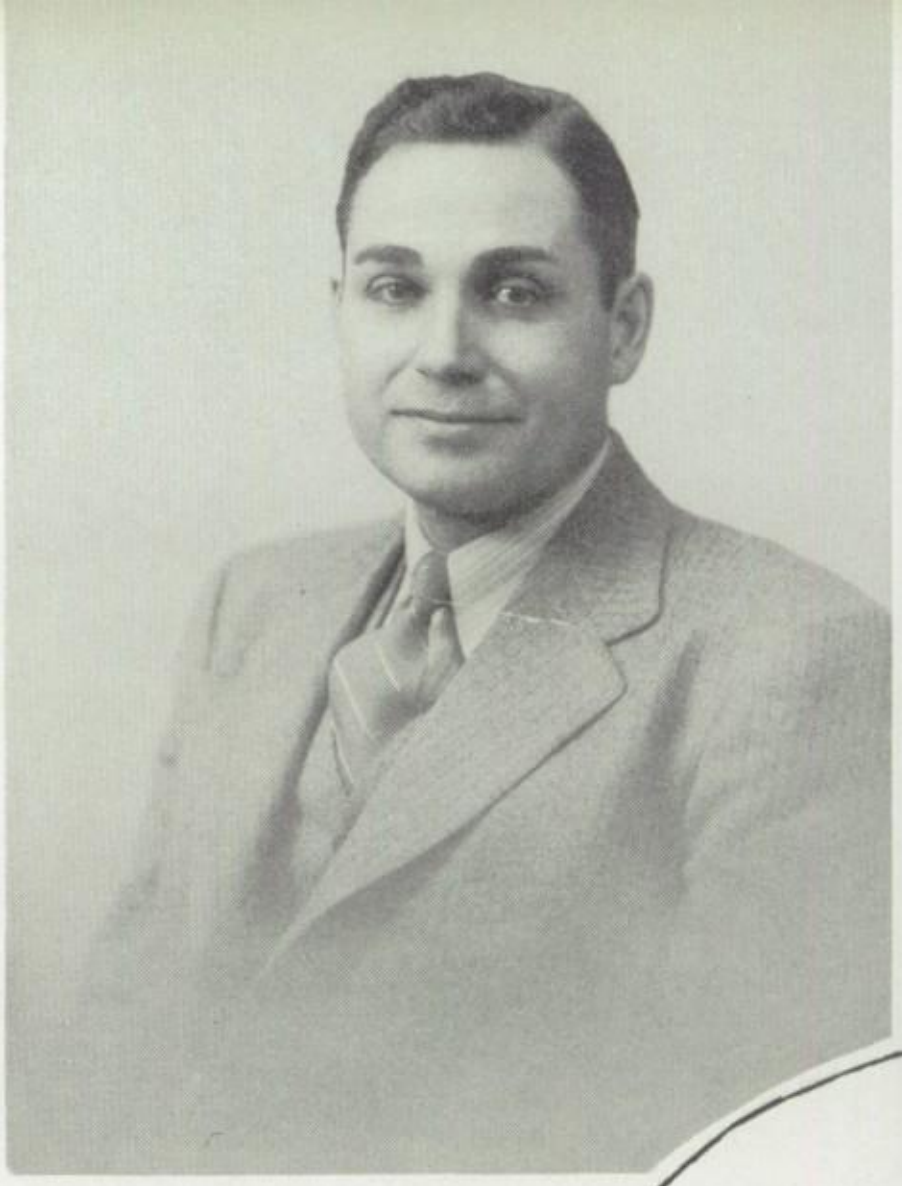
BASKETBALL

Murray's basketball team came through with the most successful season in the school's history.

They walloped Columbia Heights twice, 21 to 45 and 29 to 45. They downed Aitkin, but lost to a strong Brainerd team while on a road trip. Then they returned to the city to drop Forest Lake 31 to 21.

The victory spark did not continue to burn for the Pilots who, rated as the dark horse team, met defeats before the onslaughts of Washington, Central, a strong Concordia team, Wilson, Monroe, and Johnson.

The return of Dave Brandt from the injured list may have been the spark needed to step up the Pilot five, for they swung back into the winning column by defeating Marshall and Humboldt.



Corlis J. Huntley has coached Murray's basketball team for the third season in all-city competition.

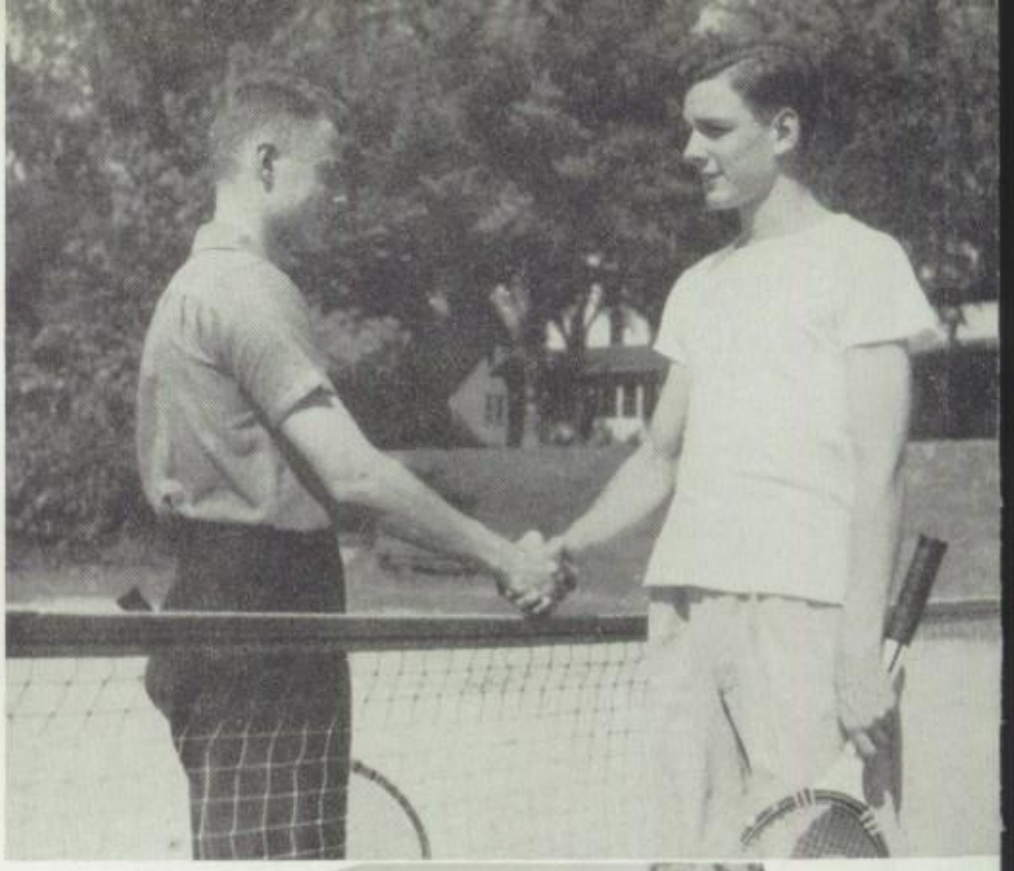
TENNIS



Finishing in the top brackets of the city conference schedule, the Murray netmen won all but one of their 1941 season games.

Wilson was the first to fall to the Pilots' tennis team to the tune of 4-1. In the singles Ken Strauch and Dave Brandt defeated their men while Bill Gullickson dropped his point. The Pilots made a clean sweep in the doubles winning by a forfeit and by the score 6-2, 6-2.

Against Washington, Coach Richard Kayser's netmen swept the slate clean by taking every match in the singles and doubles.

Harding fell next to the Pilots by a score of 4-1, the Murray men losing only a single match.

In the last event of the season the Pilots met their first defeat when they played Johnson's well-known netmen.

GOLF

Team – John Knipfel, Charles Zwiener, Jim Conyne, Bill Skon, Erwin Peterson, Robert Rowland, Henry Ernst.

Led by Captain Erwin Peterson, the 1941 Murray golf team rounded out one of its most successful seasons of the past three years.

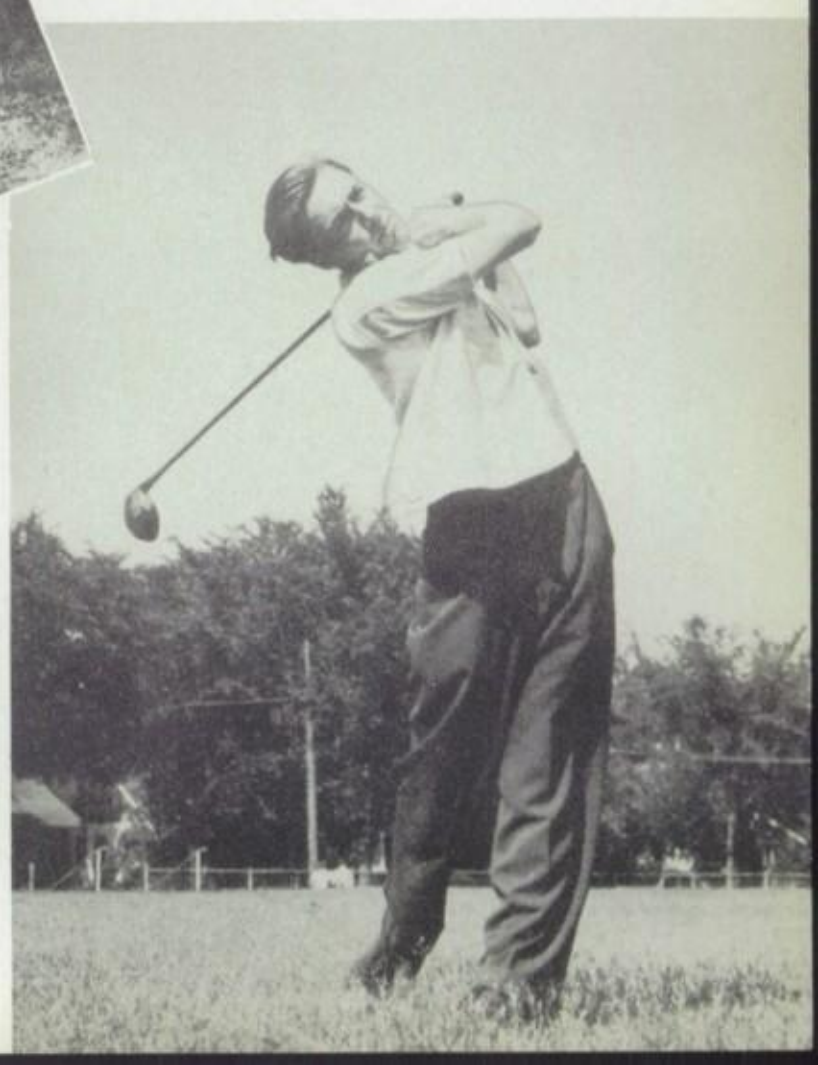
The first match ended in a victory over Wilson's team. In two non-conference matches, the Pilots downed University High and Mechanic Arts.

In conference play Wilson, Washington, and Harding were outmatched by the winning Pilots. Johnson High then defeated Murray by the narrow margin of 8½ to 9½.

Erwin Peterson led his teammates with an average of 80 and Charles Zwiener, promising sophomore, was close second with an 82. Other linkmen followed with close scores making the team leaders shoot good golf to remain in top standings.

Averages of individual team members were: Jim Conyne, 85; Henry Ernst, 89; Robert Rowland, 89; Bill Skon, 91; Granville Guttersen, 91.

Of course golfers need to rest think John Knipfel, Charles Zwiener, and Henry Ernst.



Charles Zwiener tees off.

BASEBALL

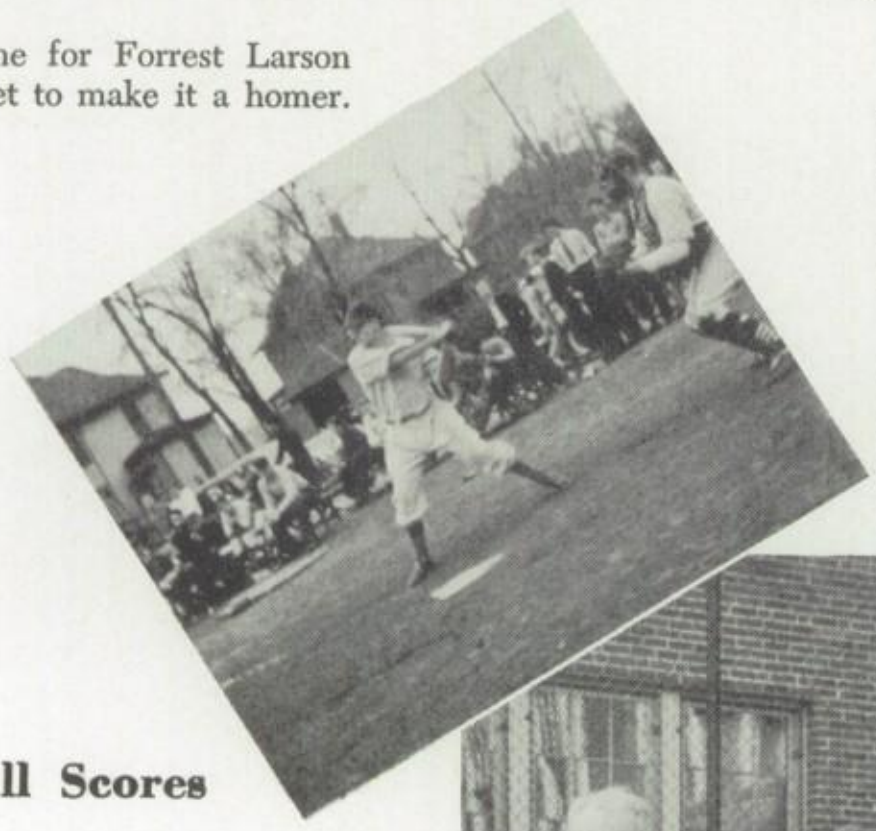
Rounding out the spring sports was baseball with Captain Art Engebretson leading his team through a somewhat hectic season.

The Cardinals of Wilson spoiled the first appearance of the Pilot nine by handing them an 8-0 defeat at Dunning Field.

Washington's tremendous hitting power was not underestimated as was proven in the Pilots' first tangle with the Presidents. Murray, against one of the best hitting teams in the city, was satisfied to settle for a 10-0 score.

Forrest Larson gets a bit dusty sliding into base.

It's strike one for Forrest Larson as he gets set to make it a homer.



The Pilots came the nearest to victory on May nineteenth when they met the Maroons of Harding. Murray grabbed a three run lead in the first inning and held it until the sixth. It was "Lucky Seven" for the Maroons when they batted in four runs to win the game 4-3.

Arnold Anderson, as student manager of the team, did much to help Coach Bergup keep the boys in form. According to Coach Bergup, a promising crop of rookies are ready for the 1942 season.

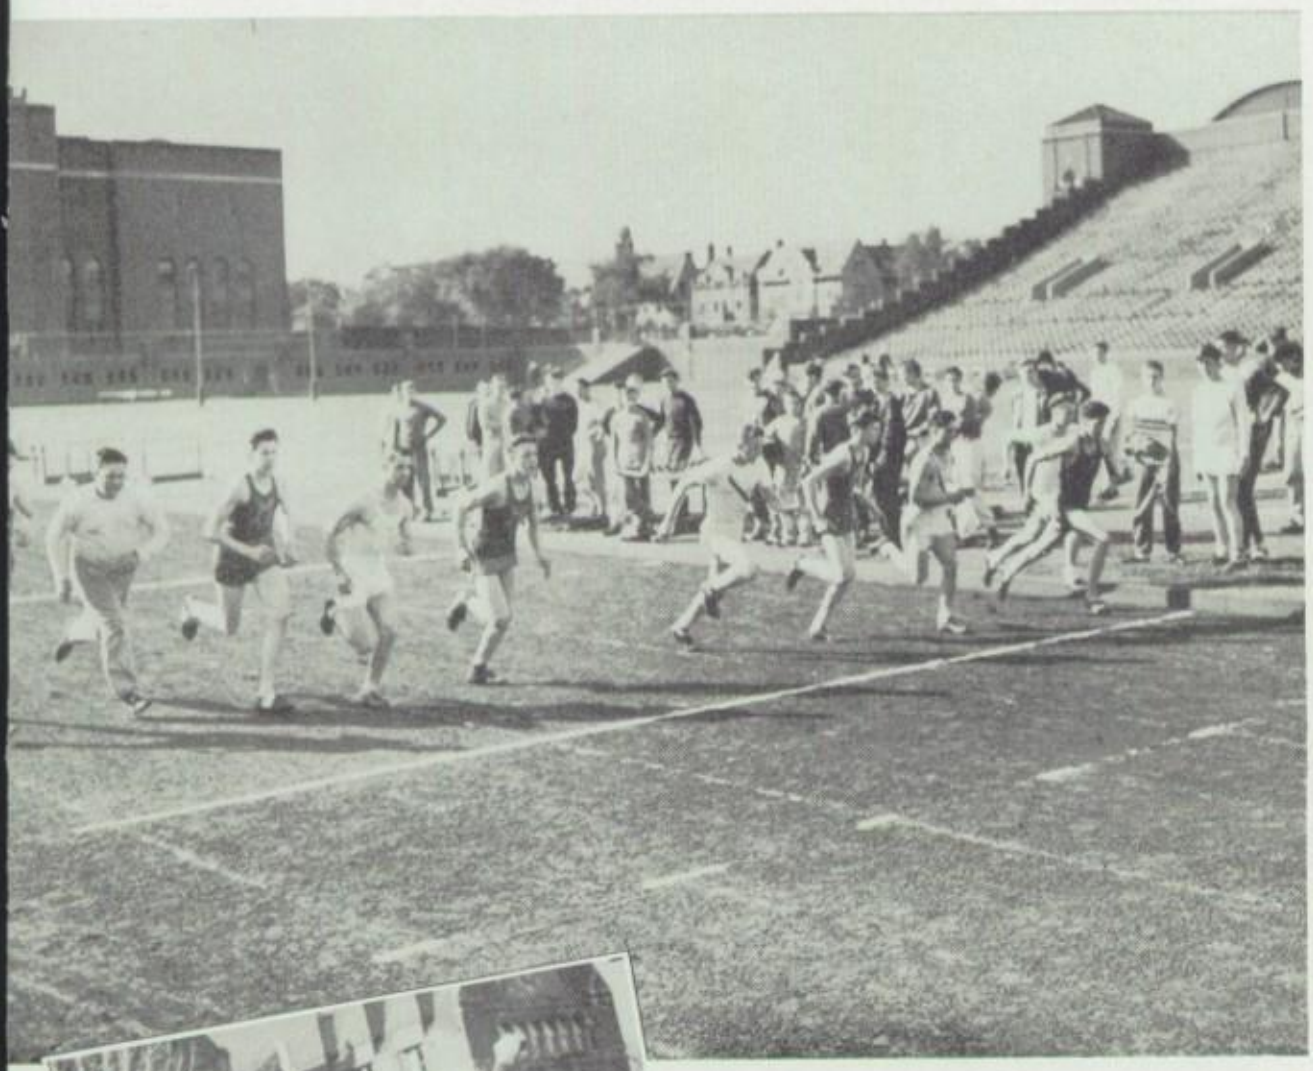
TRACK

They're off with Wilbur Rose in the lead.



In the opening meet with Mechanics, the Pilots were downed by the wide margin of 82-22. Murray placed first in only two events.

Although defeated by Wilson in the second meet, Murray men placed first in four events. Participants were Fred Steveken, shot-put; Albert Bell, broad jump; Albert Holmboe, high and low hurdles.

The Pilots, placing first in every event, registered their first track victory against Monroe by a 75-29 tally.

In the city trials Bob Lee, Fred Steveken, and Albert Holmboe qualified. The city finals found Bob Lee placing fourth in the discus throw, Albert Holmboe, fourth in low hurdles, and Fred Steveken, fifth in the shot-put.

They Hit Their Mark

Captained by Ben Wolter, the Murray Rifle Club completed another successful season under the coaching of Mr. George Bergup. As in previous seasons, the club shot at the Como Rifle Range against teams from other high schools in St. Paul. Toward the close of the second term the team was somewhat handicapped by a shortage of ammunition and had to curtail its rounds.

Pilot Calendar 1941-1942

Sept. 3. "Got your lock?"—"Let's see your program"—"Whom do you have for history?"—These are just a few excerpts heard in the mad scramble when anxious students return to dear old Murray for another year of work and fun.

Sept. 12. Mr. Kuefler takes his squad to Red Wing for a little practice. It looks as if "Hank" Lucken didn't need it. It was his touchdown that tied the score at 6-6.

Sept. 25. Junior Class already making plans for the J-S; so Junior Sunlite—complete with a blaring nickelodian and Glenn Miller's "The Spirit Is Willing."

Oct. 3. Senior Class throws a night dance. Senior Board members almost too tired to dance after a strenuous day of decorating.

Oct. 9. "'V' for Victory"—"Plette's my bet"—You're right—Campaigns for homecoming queen started. Queens all looking for an influential manager. Everywhere posters, pictures, homecoming buttons, and signs that dropped from third story windows.

Oct. 10-11. "Kiss the Boys Goodbye"—No, this is not the Murray girls' motto, but the title of the movie sponsored by the Junior Class at their Theater Party held at the Midtown.

Oct. 17. Homecoming—Complete with a queen, the game, and the dance. Vera Harjung is crowned by "Hank" Lucken. Murray's game with Monroe at 3:30. Yes, we lost—Homecoming Dance in the gym.

Nov. 6. "Pegasus," the winged horse, plays an important part in the Book Week Assembly; the theme, "Forward with Books."

Nov. 7. Football "A" squad and fathers honored at banquet given by the P.-T.A. and the mothers of the players. Movies of Minnesota-Pittsburgh game shown.

Nov. 26. Victory Banquet for the "B" squad at the West Twins Cafe.

Nov. 27-29. St. Anthony Park comparatively quiet—the Hi-Y Convention was held at Mankato.

Nov. 28. "Slip and Slide 'n Burn Your Hide." It's a pity so many students took this advice at the Junior Class Roller Skating Party.

Dec. 11. Quill and Scroll held its first initiation of the year at Harriett McCue's home. The installation was followed by a tea.

Dec. 12. Senior Class party at Eaton's. Sleigh riding, horseback riding, dancing, eating, almost anything anyone would want, for those who braved the wintry blasts.

Dec. 16. "Quit pushing." "I was ahead of you"—This must be the students waiting (?) eagerly to get their present from Santa Claus at the Holiday Hop. However, Lois Leyh had the advantage over everyone else. She was privileged to sit on Santa's (Bill Reeves') knee and whisper in his ear what she wanted for Christmas.

Dec. 18. 8:00 P. M. finds the Christmas Program underway. Choir and Dramatic Club have collaborated, and the result is definitely impressive.

Feb. 20. "Jive and Dance at the Platter Prance." Another sunlight, this one sponsored by the Senior Class.

Feb. 26-27. "That South American Way"—Tangos, rhumbas, shouts of "Viva." The choir gives a South American operetta, "Riding Down the Sky."

March 6. "Have you bought your ticket yet?" Salesmen dashing madly around selling tickets for the Victory Dance that was sponsored by the combined efforts of the Junior and Senior Classes.

March 19. P.-T.A. Frolic—The Kiss Polka, The P.-T.A. Minstrels are just a few of the highlights at the Frolic.

March 27. "M" Club Revue is an innovation—The husky boys tread the boards and play to a big audience.

April 10. "M" Club and G.A.A. again combine to have their annual Spring Sports Dance, one of the year's spotlights.

April 23. The Library Club Banquet, "headliner" of the year for most L. C. members, especially those who have earned pins.

April 30-May 1. Seniors try their hand at dramatics when presenting their class play, "June Mad."

May 14. Senior girls and their mothers honored at the Girls' League Mother-Daughter Banquet.

May 22. Soft music, gay balloons, white jackets, spring formals, the Grand March, flashing cameras; all go to make up the biggest social event of the year, the J-S Prom.

May 28. Students dashing around madly with their "Pilots" getting signatures, and Seniors looking as if they owned the world—all characteristic of Senior and Pilot day—today.

Behind the yearbook is the staff that has worked for months to make a creative idea a reality.

Behind the staff are the field agents, Pilot homeroom agents to you, who through untiring efforts have made this book possible.

To this group the North Central Publishing Company, the printers chosen to give this book the best in typography, pay special tribute.

As important as are the editorial and promotion staffs, the efforts of a year's work would be lost if master hands in printing did not aid materially in the making of a yearbook.
